GE Water and Process Technologies - Discuss GE Water and Process Technologies

Summary

Two-thirds of the Earth is water, and a lot of that stuff can be a little sketchy. So that's where GE Water and Process Technologies steps into the picture. A unit of GE's Infrastructure division, GE Water combines the forces of GE Betz, GE Osmonics, and GE Glegg. Besides making water treatment chemicals (Betz), the business unit also manufactures pumps, filters, and fluid controls that help purify water, work against corrosion, and prepare waste water for disposal. It bought water treatment company Ionics for $1.1 billion in 2005, greatly beefing up its desalination operations. GE Water is #2 in the water treatment market behind Nalco.
